

John D. Lanza
Partner
617-248-4801
jlanza@choate.com

John D. Lanza is a member of Choate Hall & Stewart's Intellectual Property Department. He advises high technology clients concerning the strategic acquisition and transfer of rights. He works with his clients to develop comprehensive patent portfolio strategies that support and further their business goals, and prepares patentability, infringement, validity and clearance opinions. He also advises clients regarding enforcement of rights through administrative proceedings and litigation.

Mr. Lanza works with clients in a variety of high technology areas, including computer and computer-related technologies, software, internet technologies, electronic commerce technologies and business methods, computer security, cryptography, imaging systems, electronic devices and printed circuit technology.

Mr. Lanza received his BEE in 1987 and his MSEE in 1988 from Georgia Institute of Technology. He received his JD in 1995 from Northeastern University School of Law.

Mr. Lanza is a member of the Boston and American Bar Associations, the Boston Patent Law Association, the American Intellectual Property Law Association, and the Federal Circuit Bar Association. He has been an adjunct professor at Boston University School of Law and Northeastern School of Law.